FRAMEWORK

Labor Education and Research Center "Labor Black History"

Going Well:

600 Oregonians have attended our Labor Black history events at our Portland and Eugene campuses.

Project Description:

Through its Labor Black history events, LERC has brought prominent national and local speakers to the UO to discuss race, labor and the quest for a just economy. These events have generated avid interest from union and community members. LERC faculty has implemented diversity education in our work.

Lesson Learned:

Issues of equity, diversity, and inclusion are complex. However, providing expertise can create a safe space to discuss workers rights, solidarity, and have a transformational impact on learners.

Challenge:

We need to sustain our momentum and extend equity and inclusion training to broader constituents.
